Hello all,

I am working on a page on my web site that I am going to call 6 Meter Corner. Right now it is in the planning stages, I hope to have the first draft online in the next few weeks. What I am looking for is some input on what I should have on it, and actual information to put on it. I will tell you what I have got for Ideas first and then if you have an suggestions you can email me back about it.

- Interesting stories about first 6M contacts or just interesting contacts (definitely need people's short stories)

- A link to a good online call out page (Have any Idea's? I like DXSummit)

- Pictures of amateurs operating 6m at home, portable or mobile (Need pictures and information about the pics)

- A list of beacons, repeaters and nets on 6 (Need all that I can get)

- Links page for 6M pages (need all I can get)

- Band plans for 6M in different countries (need this info too)

See what I mean still in the planning stages? hi hi

If you have any Idea about sections I have not listed and / or have something to add to my ideas above (such as stories and pics and info) please email me directly (NOT THE E-Group as I don't want to upset people with my playing around hi hi) at ve1asj@...

Hey everyone!

The name's Geoff. Im in Brisbane (northside) and I've just purchased a Yaesu VR500 comms rx'r. It's a top lil unit, am very happy with it. What I'm after is anyone else from Brissie that knows any freqs for voice or data for the area. also, if anyone knows of any decoding software available for pagers or MDT's. As the Yaesu goes down to HF, I'm also after any Australian HF utility freqs, especially military.

Thanks for any help! :)

23. scanning digital police channels?

Yahoo group: australiaradio
Date: 2005-04-27 03:52:15 UTC
From: roj_blake42
Topic: 23 Message: 23

Hi all,

question: I have a uniden BC250D scanner and want to listen to the digital police channels in sydney if this can be done legally (e.g. newtown, parramatta etc).

I know I need to get an APCO 25 card for my scanner to be able to do this. Here are my questions:

I have read that the BC250D scanner with the BCi25D APCO 25 card can pick up digital signals that are 3600 baud or mixed mode but not signals that are true digital (i.e. 9600 baud).

Does anyone know if:

1. the sydney digital police frequencies are 3600, mixed mode or 9600 baud? Are they encrypted?

2. will I be able to pick up the frequencies with a BC250D scanner with the APCO 25 card? How is this done?

3. someone told me that the card itself (not just the scanner) needs some special programming before it will pick up the channels. Does anyone know about this?

Thanks

Mike

27. New Digital Scanner for the Aussie Market

Yahoo group: australiaradio
Date: 2005-11-12 02:26:56 UTC
From: Brian
Topic: 27 Message: 27

Uniden is very soon to release the UBCD396T Apco Digital Trunk Tracker IV scanner to the Australian market. For an ever increasing list of Australians (and New Zealanders) this is a very long awaited scanner. Apco Digital technology is fast becoming the new buzz word in the Australian radio market with many Police and Emergency Services taking hold of this technology. Apco digital is also starting to make its presence known in the private market with more and more security companies and private agents utilising the technology. Up until now in order to listen to Apco digital technology people only had the choice of buying an unsupported scanner from an overseas market or buying an expensive digital two way radio.

Obviously the biggest selling feature of this scanner is the fact it is a digital scanner, but if you haven't got digital in your area yet then don't be put off by that. This is one of the biggest feature packed scanners to ever hit the Aussie market. The scanner boasts an impressive list of features including:

6000 channels

Close Call technology - Allowing you to scan the spectrum and pick up nearby transmissions without even knowing who they are.

Trunk Tracker IV technology - Supporting Apco Digital decoding, Motorola, EDACS and LTR trunk tracking. This includes Trunk tracking Motorola systems and decoding APCO digital conversations on those systems.

Pre programmed service searches for some Australian states

The all important alpha tagging is back so you can see who you are listening to

Automatic Gain Control for a nice steady volume output

CTCSS and DCS decoding

Apparent Continuous band coverage from 25 MHz to 1.3 GHz (Excluding UHF TV and Cellular). This is no doubt copied straight from the US version. The Australian version will have an expanded coverage to cover the Australian 800 MHz trunk systems which are semi blocked out by the US scanners, but there are no guarantees on any over coverage.

Fire tone outs - Not used anywhere in Australia (not this system anyway) so useless unless you go to the US.

Uniden has continued with the great tradition of not including a single rechargeable battery pack in the radio. This scanner comes standard with an AC adapter and 3 x Ni-MH Rechargeable Batteries.

PC programmable

The whole package comes packed in an Ultra compact package with a blue backlit screen and keypad. Unfortunately the most off putting thing about the scanner is the price tag. At $999 it only just squeezes in under the grand mark making it the most expensive scanner Uniden has released to the Australian market to date.

There is an operators manual available on the Uniden site, but unfortunately it is the US version of the manual with no Australian changes as yet.

Emcom Communications will have further details at the online store hopefully by the end of Monday and hopefully with a release date. We are anticipating taking pre orders for the release of the scanner at this stage also.

28. Uniden Digital Scanner Update

From: Brian
Topic: 28 Message: 28

Hi All,

Just a quick update to say I have spoken to the Uniden distributor today and they still don't have a release date for the scanner and have not received any stocks as yet. The best time frame they have for a release is early December. We are still waiting on possible further details to come through from Uniden directly.

I'll try and keep the group updated as I get details, but understandably with so many different people wanting updates it is not always possible to reach everyone.

I will always be uploading the most recent up dates to the Emcom Communications store which can be accessed from the Emcom Communications main page http://www.emcom.com.au

On the store is a review of the scanner with all of the features. It has been updated since the original product went into the store after a comprehensive read of the instruction manual. The scanner is also available for pre order so it can be shipped on the day it is released.

30. Sydney Scanners Get Together

Yahoo group: australiaradio

From: Brian
Topic: 30 Message: 30

In March 2005 a group of around 20 scanner enthusiests from the Sydney area all met up at Horsley Park, for a chat, a BBQ and a bit of a play with scanners and radios. The day was a great success with a lot of information being shared and people being able to look at other peoples systems and toys they were playing with.

Different people broguht along masts, antennas, radios computers, databases, even someone brought along the unwired modem and a wireless router so we could get on the internet for information such as the ACMA database.

This year we have decided to do it all again. If your interested in meeting up somewhere in the Sydney area in March 2006 to get together for a feed and a chat and a play with other alike scanner people then now is the time to get involved.

Of course you don't have to be a scanner owner to come along. If you are an amateur radio operator or a professional int he industry and want to come along to meet up and check out what is happening on the scene then feel free to join in.

To avoid the same messages for organising going over 50 different groups all the time we created a Yahoo group at http://groups.yahoo.com/group/syd-scan-get-together/ for the organising of the day. We are just about to start organising for next year so now is the time to join and tell anyone else who might be interested.

This is the only message you may see a number of times over to bring everyones attention to the gathering.

Regards,

Brian.

Hi All,

With the release of the new Uniden Digital Scanner I have been investigating cases to suit the scanner and protect them from the wear and tear portable scanners usually suffer from. I am pleased to announce we have now placed an order for our first batch of leather cases to suit the digital scanner and they should hopefully be arriving early in January sometime.

The cases are now available for ordering on Emcom Communications online store at www.emcom.com.au/store see the product directly at http://www.emcom.com.au/store/view_product.php?product=UBCD396T_Case

Scan Victoria is now officially re-open.
In order to access the information that is now provided, free registration is required.
The information you provide will be kept in confidence, and will not be used or passed on to any authorised person(s).

A new gallery has been implemented, with some great photos.
Including the new digital + encrypted radio's in VicPol Metro cars, also a shot of the MDT's in action. This is backed with the speed camera's ect.

Whilst that should be enough, I have taken it upon myself to provide a database that you wont find anywhere else on the internet. Has 10,000+ records.
No more information will be provided on here, but if you sign up its awaiting in the downloads section for you to download it !! I am quite certain this will be a massive hit across australia.

If that isnt enough, then there are some new recordings I have added.

So what are you waiting for?

When everyone is looking for quality than why not recruiters wants quality too?, dont you think plain degree is not enough to satisfy your employer, online certification is easiest source to make your employer hire you.
